Stockholm, September 3. Upon the Advice which came lately from Gotland of the Muſcovites having been there with ſome Frigates, the Prince of Heſſe came from the Camp hither on the 10th paſt, to conſult with the Senate whether it were not proper to ſend over ſome Troops for the Defence of that Iſland, there being but 120 Soldiers upon it: Hereupon an Expreſs was diſpatched by the Senate to Count Gyllenſtierna, who commands the Forces in Schonen, to deſire him to cauſe a Reinforcement to be tranſported thither: But he has returned Anſwer that he cannot ſpare any Men for that Service. On the 20th an Expreſs arrived from Vice-Admiral Wachtmeiſter, who commands the ſmall Squadron in the Bothnick Gulph, with an Account that on the 18th one of his Cruiſers ſaw under the Iſle of Aland 8 or 10 Men of War, with near 60 Gallies; upon which News the Prince of Heſſe went back to the Camp the 21ſt, and it was reſolved for fear of a ſudden Surprize, that two Regiments of Foot ſhould come and incamp within a League of this Place, at a Paſs called Stockſund, where a Bridge is ſince laid to facilitate, if need be, the March of the whole Army hither. Vice-Admiral Lewenhaupt is returned to Gottenbourg, having not been able to get through the Belt into the Baltick. Letters of the 23d paſt from Carlſcrona adviſe, that the Week before an Expreſs arrived there from Stralſund, with Orders about the Fleet; and with Commiſſions conſtituting M. Sparre High Admiral of Sweden, M. Pſilander Admiral, M. Taube Vice-Admiral, and the Captains Grundſtierna and Krahel Rear-Admirals. The ſame Expreſs brought Orders to Colonel Witting, who commands the Weſt-Goth Regiment of Foot of 1200 Men, to repair immediately with it to Carlſcrona, in order to its being tranſported to his Majeſty at Stralſund; accordingly that Regiment came to Carlſcrona on the 23d, and was to be imbarked the Day following on Board ten Men of War of the Line that lay then ready to go again to Sea under the Command of Admiral Pſilander: But later Letters of the 27th, intimate, that as 8 Ships more will be fully repaired and ready to ſail by the 10th Inſtant, 'tis thought Admiral Pſilander will ſtop till they can all go out together. On the 1ſt Inſtant a Rumour was ſpread at the Town of Orgrund, and along that Coaſt, that about 30 Muſcovite Gallies were come to an Iſland called Graſs-Oen; upon which the People of that Neighbourhood abandoned their Dwellings, and fled up into the Country: But by the Accounts ſince come from thoſe Parts the Alarm ſeems to have been entirely groundleſs. However, the Prince of Heſſe has thought fit to detach two Regiments of Infantry to be quartered between the Towns of Gaſle and Orgrund; and Rear-Admiral Ornfeldt with two Frigates and ſix Gallies belonging to Admiral Wachtmeiſter's Squadron, is alſo ſent that way to cover the Coaſt. Yeſterday the Queen Grandmother, the Princeſs, and the whole Court returned from Carlberg to the Royal Palace here. The Secretary of the Prince of Heſſe ſet out from hence to Day for Gottenbourg, in order to imbark there for Holland, from whence he is to proceed to Caſſel about ſome private Affairs of the Prince his Maſter.

Copenhagen, October 5. On the 29th paſt we received Letters from Vice-Admiral Seeſtedt, adviſing that he had entered into the New Deep on that Side which is called the Weſter-Deep, after a Diſpute of 4 Hours with ſome Swediſh Ships of War that oppoſed his Paſſage. On the 30th in the Evening arrived a Frigate with the Confirmation and Particulars of that Action; which happened on the 25th, and the following Night the Swediſh Frigates retired into ſeveral Bays of the Iſland of Rugen, where being blocked up the Vice-Admiral thinks he ſhall make himſelf Maſter of ſome of them. There is now a free Communication between that Vice-Admiral and the Army of the Allies before Stralſund. The Grand Admiral Guldenlieu ſet out from hence on the 3d Inſtant, in order to take on him the Command of our Fleet which lyes in the Bay of Kiog, and which 'tis ſaid will ſail to Morrow towards Bornholm.

From on Board his Majeſty's Ship the Cumberland at Elſinore, Sept. 24. O. S. The contrary Winds which have blown here of late have been very violent, ſo that we have not been able to ſtir from this Place ſince we returned hither laſt; we lye expecting fairer Weather, and ſhall not fail to weigh Anchor the firſt Opportunity that preſents.

Hambourg, October 8. Letters from the Army of the Allies before Stralſund relate, that the King has given M. Seeſtedt an Admiral's Commiſſion, in Conſideration of his good Services; and that the neceſſary Diſpoſitions are making with all Diligence for the Attack of Rugen, on which Iſland are ſaid to be 8000 Swedes commanded by their King: The Allies deſign to employ 25000 Men in that Enterprize: Three of the Swediſh Ships which retired into a Bay of the ſaid Iſland, were ſunk by the Swedes themſelves after they had taken out all their Guns and other Stores. A Perſon who was ſent to the King of Sweden by the Governor of Wiſmar, has been intercepted by the Danes; and 'tis ſaid the Letters found about him import, that the Danish Frigates hindring that Town from being ſupplied by Sea, the Governour judged it neceſſary to acquaint his Swediſh Majeſty that he ſhould not be able to hold out long againſt the Troops which block up the Place, unleſs Means were found to conveigh to him ſpeedily Men, Mo-
